A DISGRUNTLED DETECTIVE

By TOM BROWNELL

Copyright by American Press Asso-

Being ambitious after reading sundry detective stories to enter the profession, I went to an office and asked for employment. It happened that a man was wanted to go among a gang of footpads and burglars disguised as was so dangerous a job that no regular detective would undertake it. These men know their own sort and truth. would easily recognize a spy. I, being filled with the romance of detective work without having had any experience, tumbled to an offer of the job

About 11 o'clock at night, disguised as a tough, I recled into a saloon where my men were supposed to be. I found them there and invited them | thought I was getting in with them when suddenly there was a hammering at the door, and the barkeeper cried: "Police! Git!" The lights went out, and we were all left in the dark, scattering like so many rats. The doors were broken down, and the police rushed in. When the lights were turned on it was found that the barkeeper and I were the only captives. How the rest got away I don't know.

way I made myself known to the cop who walked beside me. He gave a broad grin and said that was the most beautiful device of all that were practiced in the criminal profession. I told him he would learn more about that in time. I slept in a filthy cell for the rest of the night and the next day sent word to the detective agency that I would like to have them come Of course the police officers were not going to discharge me on any such evidence, or, rather, want of it, and I ing, but they got him. told the man to go back and tell the one who had hired me to come and

He didn't come till late in the afternoon, and when he did he didn't recognize me. I told him I was the man he had sent to the saloon for information, but he looked at me contemptuously and said that the man he had sent had likely met with foul play and I was trying to get out of a bad scrape by personating him. He hadn't seen me made up, and my disguise was so perfect that he believed me to be a veritable villain. He went away without being convinced as to my identity. and I was obliged to spend another A week passed, and I was still a prisoner. Then one day I was indicted as one of the men in the saloon when the police made the raid, who had made away with the detective that the agency had sent out. In other words, I was charged with being my own murderer. Upon inquiry I learned that the man who had thus been sent out on a mission had disappeared, and it was supposed he had been dispatched by

Here was a pretty how-de-do. I called again for the man who had sent me out, but he refused to come to see me, and I couldn't go to see him. I doubted if it would do any good if he came. He had never seen me but once and then but for a moment flow could be be expected to recognize me in my rough garb, especially as in the saloon scuffle I had been very badly mauled?

I sent for a lawyer and told him my story. He appeared to believe me. but said there would be no use in putting such a story before a jury. It was so palpably false that it would prejudice my case. He said he would try to get up a defense that would seem more probable. I asked him if was anything more probable than that a man could not have murdered himself and be alive. He replied that I would have to prove my dentity, which was impossible. He would try to think of some method of defense that would be easier to prove than the truth. "We lawyers don't care anything." he said, "for the What we want is something we can prove. An alibi affords the hest chance.'

When I came to be tried for being implicated in my own murder there was no proof against me except that I was known to have gone to the saloon from which I had disappeared and was one of the gang of rascals which was raided. This was considerto drink. I treated several times and ed prima facie evidence that I, probably with others, had killed myself. It was evident that I would get a long term on general principles.

My lawyer's method was very ingenious. Having entered my claim to be another person than myself, John Borland, be brought John Borland's witness, who lived in the same house, "Loss of Rome" had arrested me to swear that I had been found in and taken from the saliceman that he was not sure of me

Thus an allbi was established. I was acquitted. But I didn't continue the detective business. I had had all of that romantic occupation I wanted. Detectives are all right in and get me out. Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Interesting Analysis of Vermont's Population Is Made by the United States Census Bureau In Report Just Published.

Washington, D. C., June 24.-Following the preliminary announcements, which have been made by the census bureau from time to time, of the aggregate population of all places in the state of Vermont, as enumerated at the thirteenth census, taken as of April 15, 1910; Acting Census Director Falkner has issued a statement giving interesting aditional advance details, of which the more important relate to the state's urban and cural population. The information was taken from the first state 5,000 inhabitants, Barre shows the high- NEW CHICAGO "MARRIAGE MILL." population bulletin for Vermont, now Washington, D. C., June 24.
